Pop Culture in Higher Education

Assignment Description: This Higher Education and Student Affairs (HESA) workshop will examine how popular culture influences higher education environments and settings. We will specifically focus on the roles that television, film, news, and other multi-media outlets foreground, depict, and explore how college campuses are situated and contextualized through popular culture. This course will have students create pedagogical, theoretical, and practical insights by implementing co-course instruction design and a broad survey of topics at the nexus of critical topics within higher education in the U.S. and globally. This course will require students to critically reflect and discern from film, television, news, podcasts, readings, and other course-related content through a diversity, equity, and inclusion lens. As a result, students and the instructor will have the opportunity to collectively deepen our understanding of how popular culture connects to colleges and universities' spheres of influence, overtly and covertly. Ultimately, this requires students and the instructor to use self-work and making meaning practices through experiential lessons, interactive activities, and group engagement to challenge the ideas

Understanding the Self: Well-being, Compassion, and Resiliency

In today's demanding climate, higher education and student affairs leaders are intensely focused on student success strategies, decision-making, and crisis response. However, minimal time is spent on developing the self & the skills and strategies that anchor personal and professional growth throughout leadership development. As leaders, it's imperative to develop 'self' to effectively influence team members and peers and effectuate real change within your organization.

This course provides an overview and examination of leadership within higher education and student affairs administration with a focus on how the 'self' is interconnected to institutional programs, services, practices, resources, and best practices that support student engagement and success. Specific topics for the course will include emergency management, well-being, compassion, and resiliency.

The "U.S. Women of Color & Economic Inequality" course will highlight how income inequality, poverty, and the disparity of wealth in the United States are gendered, classed, and racialized, impacting women of color in particular. Throughout the course, we will examine global economic processes such as globalization and neoliberalism and its impact on employment, labor, income, health, social life, families, and immigration. Through a feminist perspective, we will contextualize the lives of women of color and unpack and discuss the "American Dream" ideology and how racial stereotypes perpetuate dominant ideals like meritocracy. We will also engage and learn about the different ways people resist economic inequality through life skills, strategies, activism, and social movements.

This course is a preparation course for all students considering law school and law as a profession and wanting to further develop their critical thinking skills through the study of legal reasoning. This course will introduce students to close and critical reasoning and argument development such as rule-based reasoning and analogical reasoning. Students also will be introduced to court opinions and statutes and how to present their analysis in writing. Students will first ease into legal analysis with drills based on everyday examples drawn from non-legal scenarios. Students will then gradually hone their critical thinking and analytical reasoning skills using cases and statutes and hypothetical client situations. Students will work in teams and individually on these skills with questions and assignments that simulate real-life legal problems. Students also will learn about the legal profession and the process for applying to law school

Crime, Violence & Mental Illness: This course focuses on the study of crime, violence, and mental illness. We will first discuss different types of mental illness. We will then examine research on public perceptions of violence and stigma associated with mental illness, and mental illness in mass media. Next, we will examine research on how mental illness is related to crime and violence, including the role of deinstitutionalization, the prevalence of mental illness in jails and prisons, and how violence occurs in neighborhoods and families. Finally, we will discuss legal and treatment issues, including the role of police, courts, and community programs.

Students with credit for Soci 395 - Crime & Mental Illness cannot take this section. Please contact Kristie Crane at kristieb@niu.edu for more details.

The class "U.S. Women of Color & Economic Inequality" will highlight how income inequality, poverty, and the disparity of wealth in the United States are gendered, classed, and racialized, impacting women of color in particular. Throughout the course, we will examine global economic processes such as globalization and neoliberalism and its impact on employment, labor, income, health, social life, families, and immigration. Through a feminist perspective, we will contextualize the lives of women of color and unpack and discuss the "American Dream" ideology and how racial stereotypes perpetuate dominant ideals like meritocracy. We will also engage and learn about the different ways people resist economic inequality through life skills, strategies, activism, and social movements.

An introduction to the ways in which human civilization has imagined itself and expressed its vision of the world over time and in different cultural contexts across the globe, this course also considers how these arts continue to be interpreted by contemporary scholars and audiences. Team-taught, individually taught, and online sections offered. ARTH 282 satisfies PLUS (Creativity and Critical Analysis) requirements and is included in the Origins and Influences Pathway. There are team-taught and solo instructor options. This course is required for all students in the School of Art and Design.

This course looks at the visual art and architecture of the Greek Hellenistic period, from the death of Alexander the Great to the conquest of the Greek lands by the Romans and the formation of their new empire (323-27 BCE). The term Hellenistic refers to the diffusion of Greek art forms throughout the territories of Alexander's former generals, including Egypt, Mesopotamia, Persia, and Syria. This course will survey the wide-ranging and often bombastic artistic and architectural forms across diverse contexts during this period. ARTH 330E satisfies PLUS (Society and Culture) requirements and is included in the Origins and Influences Pathway. Study of the history of contemporary art is a study of ideas about art as well as intertwined historical contexts. On the one hand, we see the increasing institutionalization and commodification of art. On the other hand, we see the pursuit of social justice. The era of contemporary art begins in the mid-1950s, when artists adopt Marcel Duchamp's insight that art is primarily conceptual, not visual. This means that an artwork is not solely a visually stimulating object; instead, it is a vehicle for exploration. In addition to lectures and readings, two brief essays, and two tests, this course gives students the opportunity to present their favorite contemporary artist to the class. Every third class will be wholly devoted to discussion. ARTH 350C satisfies PLUS (Creativity and Critical Analysis) requirements, is included in the Creativity, Innovation and Change Pathway, and has been certified as Writing Infused.

This course spans the breadth of a traditional survey of Japanese art, from its prehistoric to early modern times, but is quite topical and selective in approach. It raises for consideration a wide range of media, from sculpture and painting to gardens, architecture, ceramics, textiles, and prints. It is hoped that this approach will promote a greater understanding of the broad range of expressive function in Japan's arts. It will offer us an opportunity to see the ties that connect works of art to their cultural and historical contexts, as well as the threads that make cultural monuments timeless. ARTH 370B satisfies PLUS (Society and Culture) requirements and has been certified as Writing Infused.

This course explores the history of design from the point of view of women designers of graphics, fashion, textiles, interiors, architecture, crafts, and industrial products from the late 19th century to the present day. Through a series of case studies, including studies of Black and Indigenous designers, we will interrogate multiple theories of women and gender and their implications for the lives and professions of designers. This course is open to students in all fields and areas of study. This course is a requirement for Art History majors. It serves as an elective for the Minor in Women's and Gender Studies. Art History majors should register for ARTH 494. CSWGS students should register for ARTH 485. Graduate students pursuing the MA in Art History should register for ARTH 701. Graduate students pursuing the Certificate of Graduate Study in Women's and Gender Studies should register for ARTH 785.
