Studies in African, Oceanian, Native American, Pre-Columbian and Latin-American Art: Contemporary African Art

Designed objects from the African continent have had a complicated relationship to Modern art. Primitivist narratives embody the Western perception of African object making and practices thanks to the framing of Modern art museums like the Museum of Modern Art and the Tate Modern. This practice became increasingly problematic over the course of the 20th Century. Contemporary artists, curators and critics from all over the African continent and throughout the globe have challenged Modernist assumptive practices. This class will encounter the post-colonial disruption of this narrative by these practitioners and highlight the rich variety and complexity of their artworks.
